

Learning from Domestic Homicide Review's Training

Delivered by Richmond Fellowship

The West Midlands Office of the Police and Crime Commissioner (OPCC) and Birmingham Community Safety Partnership has commissioned Richmond Fellowship to deliver a regional Learning from Domestic Homicide Reviews training offer across the West Midlands seven Local Authority areas for multi-agency professionals.

The training is committed to sharing important learning and recommendations from DHR's with a view to inform and change guidance and practice amongst professional networks, including identifying earlier opportunities to intervene, to reduce the risk of harm to victims and their families, manage perpetrators harmful behaviour and share information about agencies and services that can assist.

The Awareness training workshop is a half a day course with the following learning objectives:

- To understand what domestic abuse is and how you may recognise it is happening
- Explore and understand the impacts of abuse on victims and survivors including children and wider affected others
- Understanding barriers to support and engagement that may exist and explore ways to overcome these
- Know what victim blaming is and how to avoid this, and be able to identify and understand collusion with perpetrators and the risks associated with this
- Know how to assess risk in a DA context and explore appropriate responses and considerations
- Acquire an awareness of the related law and legislation (inclusive of statistics and evidence)

Training will be advertised regularly via circulation and bookings managed via Eventbrite with a mixture of in person and online training available.

To book please select the appropriate date from the following list and use the Eventbrite booking link to secure your place. An invitation with joining details will be circulated to you in advance of the training session.
